interactions between nation branding and counterfeit culture two manifestations of the globalizing Intellectual Property Rights IPR regime that give rise to competing visions for the nation Nation branding is a state sanctioned policy captured by the slogan From Made in China to Created in China which aims to transform China from a manufacturer of foreign goods into a nation that creates its own IPR eligible brands Counterfeit culture is the transnational making selling and buying of unauthorized products This cultural dilemma of the postsocialist state demonstrates the unequal relations of power that persist in contemporary globalization

High Voltage Jim Motavalli, 2011-11-08 A behind the scenes look at the robustly competitive race to dominate the market for electric cars the larger than life moguls behind them and the changes that are transforming the auto industry In the 1980s it was unimaginable that the home computer would become as common and easy to use as a toaster Today plug in charging stations and smart grids seem like something still far off in the future But by 2020 the auto industry will look very different from today's field of troubled auto giants. The combination of technological breakthroughs and charging networks driven by global warming and peak oil makes it clear that revolutionary change in the auto industry is happening right now. In High Voltage Jim Motavalli captures this period of unprecedented change documenting the evolution from internal combustion engines to electric power. Driven by the auto world's ambitious and sometimes outlandish personalities, the book chronicles the race to dominate the market focusing on big players like Tesla and Fisker as well as a tiny start-up and a battery supplier. Flashing forward to the changes we'll see in the coming years, High Voltage shows a not-so-distant future where we will live on a smart grid, our cars fueling that is charging while we shop or sleep. The ramifications of these changes will be on a grander scale than most of us ever imagined: altering foreign policy, reducing trade deficits and perhaps even ending global warming.

Labour in the Clothing Industry in the Asia Pacific Vicki Crinis, Adrian Vickers, 2016-11-25. The clothing industry provides employment for 60 million workers worldwide. More than a quarter of these workers are employed in the Asia Pacific region where the industry is based on subcontracted production on behalf of international buyers. Rapid movements of manufacturing activity from country to country in search of cost advantages make clothing workers part of a globalizing labour market where they increasingly suffer from job insecurity. This book presents carefully researched case studies which highlight the ways in which labour is informalized, fragmented and made disposable by the globalization of production. Chapters address issues pertaining to rights and citizenship and new forms of activism and organization in conjunction and coordination with diverse support groups, consumers and wider global campaigns. Contributors further examine the role of the nation-state, government regulatory bodies as well as independent monitoring systems such as the International Labour Organization. Although there has been considerable effort directed to understanding how firms operate across multiple countries in studies of the organization of global production networks and the implications for complexities of scale, de-territorialization and state development projects, there has been far less focus on how these processes produce precarious labour and reshape worker consciousness. Offering new insights into the understanding and support of workers in the global textile and garment industry, this book will be of interest to academics in a variety of disciplines including Asian Studies, sociology, political economy, development, human rights, labour and gender.

Liberalism 2.0 and the Rise of China David Tyfield, 2017-09-05 What can we do in this period of historic global turbulence Mainstream narratives have no plausible account of how to stop exacerbating the multiple overlapping challenges much less begin to address them meaningfully The only thing everyone agrees is innovation will be needed But what is innovation Usually it is understood as new technologies that will solve specific problems and it is hoped return life to a business as usual of progress in individual freedom and wealth But innovation is a thoroughly social process with profound implications for the arrangement of power in a society hence shaping the emergence of new social systems Exploring evidence from the key arenas of low carbon innovation including in the pivotal location of a rising China this book describes the global systemic crisis of a neoliberal world order and the embryonic emergence of an alternative global power regime of a liberalism 2.0 This augurs both a web 2.0 based revitalization of the classical liberalism of the nineteenth century and new Dickensian inequalities and injustices Against hopes that the present is a revolutionary moment therefore political engagement with this emerging power regime is thus presented as the most productive strategy for a progressive twenty first century politics
