

SCANTRON Model 888P+

The Scantron Model 888P+ is an optical mark reader (OMR) and is faster (scores 2000 tests per hour) and very quiet when compared to the 888 model. This scanner is a standalone machine and is not connected to any computer or printer. When feeding test forms through this scanner, test results are stamped on each individual form. This scanner approach does not provide a gradebook function nor does it provide a detailed printout of the results. See document ACS-233 to learn more about ParScore – a gradebook and test scoring software program available at the ACS Service Desk in 1A5-371.

Basic Functions

Test Scoring - Both Sides Now

Using both sides of a Scantron form, this scanner can score and error mark objective and performance-based tests of up to 100 questions at a rate of 30 to 40 forms per minute.

Percentage and Raw Score

You can print the total number of correct answers as a raw score or percentage and raw score.

Combines Objective and Performance Based Scores

You have the option to combine subjective (essays, special projects, homework, and oral exams) with objective scoring (true/false, multiple choice, and matching). It automatically combines these results into a single raw and/or percentage score of up to 150 points.

Printing Correct Answers

You can use either the standard error mark to indicate a wrong answer or you can have the correct answer printed next to the student's wrong answers.

Item Analysis

You have the option to print an item analysis with class average using Scantron Form No. 9700. It prints the number of tests processed, number of students answering each question incorrectly and an average score.

Printing Rosters

You have the option to print roster scores using Scantron Form No. 9601. This printout is dependent upon the order in which the student forms are processed.

Printing Serial Numbers

You have the choice of printing serial numbers on each of the student forms.

Ballot Counting and Survey Tabulation

Counts selections for individual candidates and survey items. You have the option to print the election results on an Election Results Tally Sheet Form No. 9871.
