

Optics - The Study of Light

Refraction

Light refracts when passing between two substances at an angle.

Light does not bend as glass that is not yet within water. Bending begins at boundary between air and water.

Light travels faster in water than in air, so it bends towards the normal as it enters the water.

The refractive index (n) of a substance is a measure of how much it bends light.

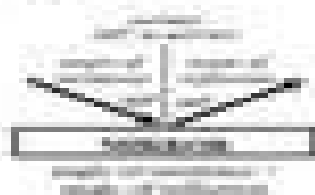

Reflection

Light reflects off a surface. Angle of incidence equals angle of reflection.

Normal - an imaginary line 90° perpendicular to a surface.

Angle of Incidence - the angle between the incident ray and the normal.

Angle of Reflection - the angle between the reflected ray and the normal.

Focus

Point at which parallel light rays converge after reflection from a curved surface. Focus is the focal point of a lens.

Concave Mirrors

Concave mirrors focus light rays that are parallel to the principal axis. They have a focal point in front of the mirror.

Convex Mirrors

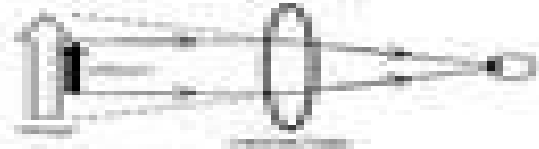

Convex mirrors diverge light rays. They have a focal point behind the mirror.

The image is virtual, upright, and smaller than the object.

Lenses

Lenses refract light. They can converge or diverge light rays.

A converging lens focuses light.

A diverging lens spreads light.

A concave lens diverges light.

A concave lens is divergent. The light rays spread apart.

Image is virtual (upright).

Concave and convex lenses depend on their shape. If a concave lens is thicker in the middle, it's a converging lens. If it's thinner in the middle, it's a diverging lens.

Concave Lenses

Optical Systems

Microscopes and telescopes use multiple lenses to magnify objects. They can be used to observe small objects or distant objects.

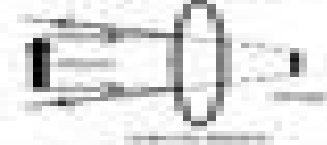

Optical systems can be used to study light. They can also be used to create images.

Images

Images are formed by light rays. They can be real or virtual. Real images can be projected onto a screen. Virtual images cannot.

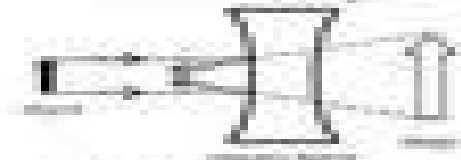

Ex. The image formed by a convex lens is real and inverted. The image formed by a concave lens is virtual and upright.

A convex lens focuses light.

A convex lens is convergent.

A concave lens diverges light.

A concave lens is divergent.
