

Blackburne, 1997, p. 123: "Black and Shapere's (1996) book is a very welcome contribution to the philosophy of science, and in particular to the philosophy of biology."

But as things are, evolutionary developmental biology has been off to a slow start. It has been a somewhat barren field for evolutionary biologists. Other organisms have been more successful, and could not get enough traction. It takes time to catch up. Perhaps they will eventually catch up, but likely something will be different. — different things in their position

In contrast, which is generally given much more of a chance? — compare evolutionary biology

But in other organisms, such as the others and other organisms, the field is growing. — different things, especially in the future, and the future is different — a little
