These self-reported behaviors were measured through four self-administered scales to assess (1) perceived drinking habits, (2) sexual behavior, (3) perceived stress, and (4) the level of self and community involvement. In the self-administered drinking scale, the respondents were asked to report on the average number of drinks consumed per week. In the sexual behavior scale, respondents were asked to report on the number of sexual partners in the past 12 months. In the perceived stress scale, respondents were asked to report on the number of times they felt stressed in the past 12 months. In the self and community involvement scale, respondents were asked to report on the number of times they participated in community activities in the past 12 months.
