

Abstract

Abstract is a summary of the entire research project, including the purpose, methods, results, and conclusions.

Abstract: Introduction

1. The purpose of this research is to determine the effect of the independent variable on the dependent variable.
2. The independent variable is the variable that is manipulated by the researcher, and the dependent variable is the variable that is measured.
3. The hypothesis is a statement that predicts the relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.
4. The results of the study are presented in the following table, which shows the mean scores for each condition.

These data suggest that the independent variable has a significant effect on the dependent variable, as indicated by the results of the statistical analysis.

Abstract: Methods

The study was conducted using a quasi-experimental design, with the following procedures:

1. The study was conducted in a classroom setting, with 30 participants (15 males and 15 females) aged 18-25.
2. The participants were randomly assigned to two groups: the experimental group and the control group.
3. The experimental group received the intervention, while the control group did not.
4. The data were collected using a standardized measure of the dependent variable, and the results were analyzed using a t-test.
5. The results of the study are presented in the following table, which shows the mean scores for each condition.
6. The study was conducted in a classroom setting, with 30 participants (15 males and 15 females) aged 18-25.
7. The participants were randomly assigned to two groups: the experimental group and the control group.
8. The experimental group received the intervention, while the control group did not.
9. The data were collected using a standardized measure of the dependent variable, and the results were analyzed using a t-test.

These data suggest that the independent variable has a significant effect on the dependent variable, as indicated by the results of the statistical analysis.
