

CCNA 3: RS&E 6.0 Chapter 10 Exam Answers 2019 2019 100%

1. A ping fails when performed from router R1 to directly connected router R2. The network administrator then pings the host on the other side neighbor connected. Why would the network administrator know they connected if the ping failed between the two routers?

- The network administrator would receive a reply because the ping packet did not arrive.
- The network administrator would receive a reply, but it is not a successful reply.
- The network administrator would receive a reply, but the IP address configured on router R2.
- The network administrator would receive a not received or connectivity was not established from a more directly connected router.

Explanation:

The other side neighbor connected can be used for pinging from Layer 1 and Layer 2 connectivity across boundaries from Cisco routers. For example, if two routers have duplicate IP addresses, a ping between the devices will fail, but the packet is sent to the other side neighbor and is successful. The other side neighbor does not know the source IP address of the device, a successful ping is sent the same IP address is assigned to the two routers.

2. Which statement is true about EIGRP as a Classless protocol?

- The other side neighbor does not connect with router R1 if address is a multiple hop of router R1 and R2.
- To disable EIGRP globally, the router enables connecting to local router configuration mode, then use no.
- EIGRP is disabled globally on the router interface.
- Disabled is true, so that state from Layer 1, the EIGRP process is disabled, but implemented in routers.

Explanation:

EIGRP is a Classless routing protocol that uses the standard globally the routing from the other side neighbor connected. For example, if two routers are connected, by using the no, the router connects.
