Union seeks a pay bump

Step raises a focal point of contract stalemate

By Kelly Meier
Repository staff writer

LOUISVILLE The major sticking point in the contract dispute between the teachers and the school board in the Louisville City School District is whether teacher pay rates should be raised to the level they would have been if the last recessions never had happened.

In a report filed with the state Friday, fact-finder Steve Johnson, of Akron, addressed — but doesn't entirely resolve — the union's request for what it calls recovery steps and provides recommendations for nearly 30 other contract disputes between the state Board of Education and the Louisville Education Association. The district's roughly 1,800 part-time and full-time teachers have been working without a contract since June 30 and are seeking pay raises to go on strike Wednesday if the two sides can't reach a new deal.

A copy of Johnson's 15-page report can be found on the Louisville school district website: www.louisvilleschools.org. The school board has scheduled a special meeting for 8 a.m. Monday to act on the fact-finder's report. Superintendent Michele

Ohio lagged far behind big donor states such as California, Florida, New York and Massachusetts in donors giving above-average amounts to date of Oct. 20, according to Federal Election Commission records.

That puts the Buckeye State 13th on the list this cycle, below not only larger, more populous states, but also Virginia, D.C., which kicked in six-fold more to all presidential candidates.

Mavericks, Money, and Men Charles Ross, 2016-05-25 The American Football League established in 1960 was innovative both in its commitment to finding talented overlooked players particularly those who played for historically black colleges and universities and in the decision by team owners to share television revenues. In Mavericks Money and Men football historian Charles Ross chronicles the AFL's key events including Buck Buchanan becoming the first overall draft pick in 1963 and the 1965 boycott led by black players who refused to play in the AFL All Star game after experiencing blatant racism. He also recounts how the success of the AFL forced a merger with the NFL in 1969 which arguably facilitated the evolution of modern professional football. Ross shows how the league originally created as a challenge to the dominance of the NFL pressured for and ultimately accelerated the racial integration of pro football and also allowed the sport to adapt to how African Americans were themselves changing the game. Federal Communications Commission Reports.
