The chapters provide readers with a comprehensive insight into how sport science is helping practitioners to create more evidence based approaches when attempting to identify and develop future generations of elite players rather than relying on tradition and precedence. This book dispels some of the myths involved in talent identification and highlights how science is playing an ever increasing role in guiding and shaping the practices used at the most renowned professional clubs across the globe. It is a must read for anyone involved in the game at any level including sports scientists, medical staff, coaches and administrators. The book also considers the integration of systems at micro to macro levels from working with individual athletes to developing national organisations and policy and features in depth case studies from real sport throughout. This is an essential reference for any researcher or advanced student with an interest in elite sport or applied sport science from sport injury and sport psychology to sports coaching and sport policy. Coaching Science Terry McMorris, Tudor Hale, 2006-08-30

Coaching Science and Coaching Studies courses are appearing in increasing numbers in many universities. The textbooks used in most of these courses are either theoretically based sports science texts or practically based coaching books. The former are generally lacking in application while the latter rarely have any scientific input. The reader is therefore left to make the links themselves. Coaching Science will bridge that gap covering both theory and practice and most important showing how theory informs practice. The book will be multi and to some extent inter disciplinary as it is not possible to examine the interaction between coach performer and task from a single discipline perspective. Each chapter will include overviews of the main theories but the bulk of the material will be concerned with how such theories can be applied in practice. Good and frequent use of examples will be provided. Throughout the student will be given problems to solve. At the end of each chapter there will be revision notes, recommended readings and questions on chapter content.
