INTRODUCTION

Rock candy is a type of candy that is made from sugar. It is made by dissolving sugar in water and then allowing the solution to crystallize. The crystals that form are called rock candy crystals. Rock candy is a popular treat for children and adults alike.

QUESTION:

Will the temperature affect the growth of rock candy?

HYPOTHESIS:

The sugar crystals will grow faster in room temperature than cold temperature.

THEORY

Rock candy is made from sugar and water. The sugar molecules are dissolved in the water. When the solution is cooled, the sugar molecules form crystals. The crystals are called rock candy crystals. The growth of rock candy crystals is affected by temperature. The higher the temperature, the faster the crystals grow. The lower the temperature, the slower the crystals grow.

CONCLUSION

The experiment showed that the sugar crystals grew faster in room temperature than in cold temperature. This supports the hypothesis.
