

Newton... apple trouble

Core! Newton discovers gravity

BRILLIANT young scientist Isaac Newton has come up with a radical new physics theory after seeing an apple fall off a tree.

He has said gods a force called "gravity" draws everything on Earth to the ground.

The ball, he believes, also affects everything in the universe, friend William Shakespear said: "It was of an apple, as he sat in contemplative mood."

"Why should that apple not descend sideways or upwards, but constantly in the Earth's orbit?"

LONDON'S BURNING

Inferno is sparked by dozy baker

By STELLA LIGHT

DOZY baker Thomas Farnor may have sparked the fire by falling to make sure his oven was out.

He believed the oven was safely cooling down — but a few small embers are thought to have been still smoldering at the back.

Three hours after going to bed, Thomas, his wife and young daughter awoke to find their home in Pudding Lane full of smoke and flames.

Safe

The baker — who supplies bread to the King — managed to clamber to safety through an upstairs window with his family and a servant.

But his maid was too frightened to climb out and died in the flames.

A neighbour of Thomas's said last night: "It's a tragedy — he's such a nice man, he'll be absolutely distraught."

Panic in the streets... families flee from the fire towards the River Thames last night

Thousands flee from huge blaze

By DES ASTOR

LONDON was facing catastrophe last night as an enormous fire raged out of control.

Hundreds of houses have already been destroyed by the inferno, which is spreading by the second.

One terrified witness said: "There seems to be nothing more we do. Entire streets have been engulfed within a few minutes."

The blaze began at a baker's in Pudding Lane, East London, at about 1am yesterday.

Sparks landed by in the middle of an iron road door, then the flames spread to a church nearby.

WIND

A strong wind fanned the flames — and by 1am half of London Bridge was on fire. One person is known to have died so far and the death toll is expected to rise in the next few hours.

Last night King Charles ordered teams of soldiers to blow up wooden buildings in the fire's path in an effort to stop it spreading.

The London parish are supposed to provide buckets and ladders for use in fighting fires. But yesterday many of them were found to have rotted through neglect.
