Frahm, 2012-12-06 This first volume in the series on Comparative Brain Research in Mammals deals with the brains of Insectivora The importance of Insectivora lies above all in the fact that 1 insectivore like ancestors are regarded as the initial group for the evolution of higher mammals and 2 the insectivore brains retained many conservative traits though the animals have adapted to different living environments Therefore the study of Insectivora brains enables an insight into the size and composition of the brain structure of earlier ancestors of the higher mammals including primates and humans in addition it illuminates the various evolutionary trends which made the successful adaptation to different biotopes possible The alterations which the brain has experienced in the course of the phylogeny and the related adaptive radiation will be examined in the succeeding volumes on the brains of other Eutheria e.g. bats Volume 2 and primates Volume 4 In Volume 3 the brains of marsupials will be compared with those of conservative and evolved Eutheria Psychiatric Neuroimaging Virginia Ng, Gareth J.
