

Hungry people in Gaza waited to get a meal last week. The food shortages are severe, but it is not the first time in Gaza's history.

In Philippines, Impoverishment Is a Legacy of U.S. Colonialism

By MICHAEL C. GRANT
 Impoverishment, malnutrition and ill health are the legacy of U.S. colonialism in the Philippines, a legacy that has been passed on to the present generation, according to a new report from the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). The report, titled "The State of the World's Children 2008," says that the Philippines is one of the poorest countries in the world, with a high rate of infant mortality and a low life expectancy. The report also notes that the Philippines has a high rate of poverty, with nearly 20 percent of the population living on less than $2 a day.

As Neighbors Prosper via Manufacturing, Farming Persists

While the Philippines is one of the poorest countries in the world, its neighbors, Indonesia and Malaysia, have become more prosperous in recent years. This is due to their focus on manufacturing and farming, which have become major sources of income for these countries. In contrast, the Philippines has remained largely dependent on agriculture, which has not grown as fast as the other two countries. This has led to a widening gap in economic development between the Philippines and its neighbors.

From One of 'Central Park Five' To Member of the City Council

Robert Williams, one of the five young men wrongly accused of the 1989 Central Park jogger case, has been elected to the New York City Council. Williams, who was 15 years old at the time of the case, has spent the last 18 years of his life fighting to clear his name and seeking justice for himself and the other four young men. His election to the City Council is a significant milestone in his life, as it represents a recognition of his innocence and a step towards healing the wounds of the case.

Inside Accounts of Strains Between U.S. and Israelis

Half of Gazans Face Risk of Starvation, the U.N. Warns

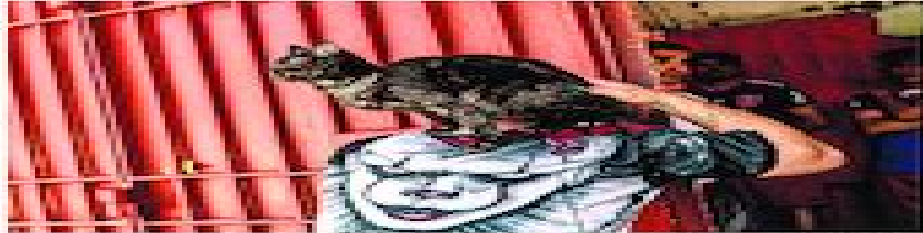

Half of the people in Gaza face the risk of starvation, the United Nations warns. The UN says that the Israeli blockade of Gaza is causing a humanitarian crisis, with many people facing food shortages and a lack of access to basic necessities. The UN also says that the Israeli military operations in Gaza are causing civilian casualties and displacement. The UN is calling for an end to the blockade and for a return to normalcy in Gaza.

War Tests Tie More Than Any Episode in Past 50 Years

The war in Gaza is testing the ties between the U.S. and Israel more than any episode in the past 50 years, according to a new report from the Brookings Institution. The report says that the Israeli blockade of Gaza and the military operations in Gaza are causing a significant strain on the U.S.-Israel relationship. The report also says that the U.S. is facing increasing pressure from the Israeli public to take a harder line against the Palestinians. The Brookings Institution is calling for a more balanced approach to the conflict.

Cats Filled This Chilean Prison. Then, the Inmates Fell in Love.

In a prison in Chile, inmates were allowed to keep cats. The cats became a source of comfort and companionship for the inmates, and many of them fell in love with their cats. The prison officials were surprised by the inmates' attachment to the cats, and they decided to allow them to keep them. This is a unique example of the power of animals to provide comfort and support to people in difficult circumstances.

The largest prison in Chile is home to about 2,000 cats, which inmates have affectionately adopted and care for. The cats have become a source of comfort and companionship for the inmates, and many of them have formed strong bonds with their cats. The prison officials have noticed the positive impact of the cats on the inmates and have decided to allow them to keep them.

Ex-Pentagon Officials Flocking To Join Venture Capital Firms

Many former Pentagon officials are flocking to join venture capital firms, according to a new report from the Wall Street Journal. The report says that these officials are bringing with them valuable knowledge and experience from their time at the Pentagon, which is making them attractive to venture capitalists. This trend is seen as a way for the U.S. to leverage its military technology and expertise for civilian use.

Urging U.S. to Fund Spin-Offs Designing Weapons of Future

The U.S. should fund spin-off companies that are designing weapons of the future, according to a new report from the RAND Corporation. The report says that these companies are developing new technologies that could be used in a variety of ways, including for defense. The RAND Corporation is calling for the U.S. to provide funding for these companies to ensure that they are able to develop and test their technologies.

Setting Sights on China: U.S. and Canada Agree to Joint Study

The U.S. and Canada have agreed to a joint study on the impact of climate change on the Arctic region. The study will focus on the melting of ice and the resulting changes in the environment. The U.S. and Canada are working together to better understand the challenges posed by climate change in the Arctic and to develop strategies to address them.

Congress' Powerless Re-elected

Congress is expected to be re-elected, despite its perceived weakness. This is due to the popularity of the current Congress and the lack of a strong alternative. The re-election of Congress is seen as a sign of the public's confidence in the current leadership.

A Culture of Fear

There is a culture of fear in the U.S. due to the threat of terrorism. This has led to increased security measures and a sense of unease among the public. The fear of terrorism is a major factor in the U.S. government's policies and actions.

U.S. Returns to the Office Council

The U.S. has returned to the Office Council, a body that oversees the U.S. military's operations in the Middle East. This is a sign of the U.S. government's commitment to transparency and accountability in its military operations.

Does Treating Money Could Buy

Does treating money like a commodity could buy the U.S. a more secure future? This is a question that is being asked by many people. The U.S. government is facing a number of challenges, and it is unclear whether treating money as a commodity will help to address these challenges.
