House of Representatives on Subjects Affecting the Naval and Military Establishments, 1993 Measuring National Income in the Centrally Planned Economies William Jefferies, 2014-11-27 In 1991 Communism collapsed The cold war was over and the West had won Whole cities Moscow St Petersburg Warsaw Beijing Budapest and Bucharest whole countries indeed were privatised for nothing or next to nothing This was probably the greatest expansion of the world market in history And yet according to national income measurements of the CIA OECD World Bank and IMF this gigantic expansion of market production led to a decline in market production in the very countries where it was introduced How to explain this paradox This book traces the origin of the West's national income measurements from their origin in the 1923 4 Balance developed in the USSR to the USA in the early 1930s via two Soviet exiles Simon Kuznets and Wassily Leontief and then back to the USSR again after a vigorous debate through a protégé of Kuznets Abram Bergson The AFC imputed national incomes to a centrally planned economy based on physical not income measurements This book provides a detailed assessment of the failure of the AFC method to measure the real growth of actual market production during the transition period This book provides a detailed account of the application of national income measurements to the centrally planned economies It assesses all of the major contributors to this debate including Colin Clark Naum Jasny Alexander Gerschenkron G Warren Nutter and Abram Bergson It provides a new much higher estimate of the expansion of market production during the transition period based on an estimate of the actual growth of real market production It discusses the very significant implications of this re estimate for contemporary theories of globalisation

Intellectual Teamwork Jolene Galegher, Robert E. Kraut, Carmen Egido, 2014-01-14 This book seeks to establish an interdisciplinary applied social scientific model for researchers and students that advocates a cooperative effort between machines and people After showing that basic research on social processes offers much needed guidance for those creating technology and designing tools for group work its papers demonstrate the mutual relevance of social science and information system design and encourage better integration of these disciplines This comprehensive collection closely examines the variety of electronic tools being deployed to solve traditional problems in communication and coordination Unfortunately research shows that these tools have not been as successful as their designers had envisioned partially because they were not always produced with the needs and goals of their human users in mind The editors goal is to entice more social scientists to orient their research around questions of practical interest to information system designers and to convince designers to search for the knowledge about social and organizational behavior that would make their tools more useful
