This statement should be ten pages in length with 1 inch margins, Times New Roman 12 point font, and 1 ½ line spacing. Please note that applications are evaluated on the completeness with which these questions are addressed and the degree of insight demonstrated. Special attention is paid to expression of clear long-term professional outcomes, strengths and weaknesses, self-awareness, openness to self-exploration, previous research experiences, and clarity of writing. Applicants to the Personal Financial Planning Ph.D. program should be prepared to balance interests in research, practice, and policy application.

1. Identify three issues in the personal financial planning field that warrant research, and discuss how achieving a Ph.D. will help you facilitate answers to these issues.
2. What do you consider to be strengths that will help you become an outstanding researcher and educator? When answering this question elaborate any training, skills, or experiences that will help you achieve success in the doctoral program.
3. What do you consider to be the area that will need most attention during your training? If you have something unusual in your background that might be considered a deficit, please discuss it.
4. What critical events from the past have most influenced your present personal and professional development?
5. How has your personal life impacted your professional life? If you experienced set-backs or obstacles how did you overcome them?
6. Why do you want to obtain a Ph.D. in Personal Financial Planning from Kansas State University?
7. What personal qualities can you contribute to the Ph.D. program at K-State?

This Handbook explores current thinking on EL ideas and examples of EL in practice and the importance of EL to the future of management education.

Reflection-in-Motion Jaclyn Fiscus-Cannaday, 2025-05-23 Reflection in Motion considers how reflective practice is embedded in daily course happenings centering the experiences of students and teachers in Minority Serving Institutions to amplify underrepresented viewpoints about how reflection works in the writing classroom. Jaclyn Fiscus Cannaday examines how its availability is subject to teacher student power dynamics, the literacies welcomed or not in the class, the past and present pedagogies that students are engaging with and attending to, and the interactions among humans, materials, and emotions within the rhetorical context. She adopts an intersectional feminist perspective for an inclusive view of how practitioners name, identify, and practice reflection in the everyday moments of writing classrooms. Fiscus Cannaday invokes a Black feminist qualitative research method that Venus Evans Winters calls a mosaic. When researchers collect both traditional and nontraditional texts to create a full view of students and teachers, interviews at three institutions: a Hispanic Serving Institution, a Historically Black College and University, and an Asian American Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution, she finds that practitioners often build definitions from past experiences with reflection and then use those definitions as terministic screens to decide if an activity can be named, identified, and practiced as reflection. These definitions hold different rhetorical effects: reflection for introspection, reflection for learning, reflection for mindfulness, and reflection for awareness. Reflection is used for these different rhetorical effects, but because classrooms so often focus on the Westernized view and its emphasis on growth, reflection has the underused and undertheorized potential rhetorical effect of helping students investigate their identities and positionalities, acknowledge deep-rooted ideologies, and consider new perspectives so they can better work across difference. Reflection in Motion will inspire teachers and writing program administrators to listen to how students define and practice reflection and why, thus making room for more capacious definitions of reflection and student-centered practices of what reflection can do and be. Self-Regulation and the Common Core Marie C. White, Maria K. DiBenedetto, 2015-03-27 The Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts created new challenges for teachers and pre-service instructors. Self-regulated learning, using one's thoughts, feelings, and behaviors to reach goals, can help students become independent, self-directed learners. This book provides educators the support they need to apply the principles of self-regulated learning in their teaching for success with the Common Core. In this book, Marie C. White and Maria K. DiBenedetto present information on how to apply academic self-regulation by integrating two models: one which addresses how students develop self-regulatory competence, the other which focuses on the various processes within the three phases of self regulated learning In addition Self Regulation and the Common Core provides specific lesson plans for grades K 12 using the standards and the integrated framework to promote higher order thinking and problem solving activities The Teacher's Reflective Practice Handbook Paula Nadine
