1. The Logistic Model

a) The logistic model describes the growth of a population over time, taking into account the carrying capacity of the environment. The model is represented by the differential equation: $\frac{dN}{dt} = rN \left(1 - \frac{N}{K}\right)$, where N is the population size, r is the intrinsic growth rate, and K is the carrying capacity. The model predicts that the population will grow exponentially at first, but will eventually level off as it approaches the carrying capacity.

b) The carrying capacity of a population is the maximum number of individuals that the environment can support sustainably.

i) The carrying capacity of a population is determined by the availability of resources.

Correct answer: True

ii) The carrying capacity of a population is not fixed, but can change over time due to changes in the environment.

Correct answer: True

2. The Exponential Growth Model

a) The exponential growth model describes the growth of a population over time, assuming that the population is not limited by resources.

i) The exponential growth model is represented by the differential equation: $\frac{dN}{dt} = rN$, where N is the population size and r is the intrinsic growth rate. The model predicts that the population will grow exponentially over time.

Correct answer: True

ii) The exponential growth model is only valid for short periods of time, as it does not take into account the carrying capacity of the environment.

Variable	Definition	Unit
N	Population size	Individuals
r	Intrinsic growth rate	year^{-1}
K	Carrying capacity	Individuals
t	Time	Years

The exponential growth model is only valid for short periods of time.

b) The exponential growth model is only valid for short periods of time, as it does not take into account the carrying capacity of the environment.

Correct answer: True
