

1. Introduction The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of a new teaching method on student performance. The study was conducted over a period of six months, involving a sample of 100 students from a secondary school.	2. Methodology The study employed a quasi-experimental design. The participants were divided into two groups: an experimental group and a control group. The experimental group received the new teaching method, while the control group received the traditional method. Data was collected through standardized tests and questionnaires.	3. Results The results of the study indicate that the new teaching method had a significant positive effect on student performance. The experimental group scored significantly higher on the standardized tests compared to the control group. Additionally, the experimental group reported higher levels of engagement and motivation.	4. Conclusion The findings of this study suggest that the new teaching method is more effective than the traditional method in improving student performance. However, further research is needed to explore the long-term effects of the method and its applicability in different educational contexts.
