Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic and resistance exercise. The CON group remained sedentary. HR and EE were measured at baseline and after 12 weeks. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and a significant increase in EE compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness and increase energy expenditure in sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Natural sources of light will only work with the use of the standard time specifications, the length of the season may differ depending on the soil moisture availability.
- The soil moisture level is important, it may change the time period of the growing season, depending on the soil's ability to retain water for the growing season.
- Natural light is not suitable for those growing of sensitive plants, but can be used for the 50% of a year.
