Environment, Politics and Activism Somnath Batabyal, 2015-07-17 This book examines the role of the media in environmental politics and activism in the 21st century. It highlights how politics is mediated in myriad ways through newspapers and news channels through mobile telephony and through social networking sites. Further, it shows how the media creates and influences relevant discourses, builds campaigns and awareness, and adopts and discards issues. With a range of perspectives on issues of environmental justice and equity, the volume scrutinizes how the media discourse on environment shapes our politics and the role of international politics, finance, youth, newspapers, magazines, and 24-hour television. Bringing together academics, activists, and media persons, this highly topical book will serve as significant reading for researchers and scholars of development studies and media studies, as well as policymakers, NGOs, and environmental campaigners.

However, in the scientific arena, the process of documenting traditional knowledge and the heritage of local foods is often addressed by itself and is not well connected to deeper reflections of the actual participatory processes involved in local development or to the manners through which TK informs public discourse regarding local foods and how this may further influence activists, institutions, and governance.

Theorising the Practice of Community Development Peter Westoby, 2016-02-17 Based on 25 years of community development practice six of which have been lived in South Africa Peter Westoby's ground breaking monograph moves away from dominant normative accounts of community development to provide an appreciative and critical analysis of concrete examples of community development theory and practice By examining community development stories as experienced on the ground Westoby is able to show how the poor are organising themselves using various forms of community development as well as demonstrating how the state and non state actors are attempting to organise engage or accompany the poor through community development The book also breaks new ground in theorising the practice of community development drawing inductively from the stories analysed The diversity of South African contexts and the proliferation of different kinds of community practice make this a hugely difficult task Despite this Westoby argues it is one worth undertaking given the seriousness of the challenges facing the poor and progressive social change agents within South Africa In this undertaking Westoby draws upon a unique analytical framework to help illuminate current community development policy and programme challenges along with practice dilemmas and wisdom
