

No Time

Clocks cannot tell our time of day
For what event to pray, Because we have no time, because We have no time until We know what time we fill, Why time is other than time was.

Nor can our question satisfy
The answer in the statue's eye.
Only the living ask whose brow
May wear the Roman laurel now:
The dead say only how.

What happens to the living when they die?
Death is not understood by death: nor you, nor I.

Grammatikos, 2024-11-15 This collection of essays offers an image of Byron not only as a poet for which he is best known but as a translator of foreign literature and culture To recover this underexplored element of Byron's work the contributors examine his translated pieces in both textual and extra textual contexts including analysis of manuscripts composition history publishing history and other literary and historical factors They explore the motives behind Byron's choice to translate in the first place as well as reconstructing the translational methods he applied and his ideas on translation and the role of the translator in general The book focuses too on Byron's geographical mobility which also involved the act of translation though in a metaphorical sense The cosmopolitan poet mediated and interpreted all the time foreign cultures behaviours modes of living customs and habits In this sense translation becomes for the poet a dynamic movement between languages across texts and around various contexts offering Byron a vital space for the articulation of his ideas Byron's translation work reminds us how Romantic writers and readers sought to learn about and engage with the wider world and its various languages
