The Silver Market Phenomenon

Florian Kohlbacher, Cornelius Herstatt, 2010-11-01 The current shift in demographics, aging and shrinking populations in many countries around the world, presents a major challenge to companies and societies alike. One particularly essential implication is the emergence and constant growth of the so-called graying market or silver market, the market segment more or less broadly defined as those people aged 50 and older. Increasing in number and share of the total population while at the same time being relatively well off, this market segment can be seen as very attractive and promising, although still very underdeveloped in terms of product and service offerings. This book offers a thorough and up-to-date analysis of the challenges and opportunities in leveraging innovation, technology, product development, and marketing for older consumers and employees. Key lessons are drawn from a variety of industries and countries, including the lead market, Japan.

Human-Computer Interaction Peter Forbrig, Fabio Paternó, Annelise Mark Pejtersen, 2010-08-23 The IFIP World Computer Congress WCC is one of the most important conferences in the area of computer science at the worldwide level, and it has a federated structure which takes into account the rapidly growing and expanding interests in this area. Informatics is rapidly changing and becoming more and more connected to a number of human and social science disciplines. Human-computer interaction is now a mature and still dynamically evolving part of this area, which is represented in IFIP by the Technical Committee 13 on HCI. In this WCC edition, it was interesting and useful to have again a Symposium on Human-Computer Interaction in order to present and discuss a number of contributions in this field. There has been increasing awareness among designers of interactive systems of the importance of designing for usability but we are still far from having products that are really usable and usability can mean different things depending on the application domain We are all aware that too many users of current technology often feel frustrated because computer systems are not compatible with their abilities and needs in existing work practices As designers of tomorrow's technology we have the responsibility of creating computer artifacts that would permit better user experience with the various computing devices so that users may enjoy more satisfying experiences with information and communications technologies
