

Gorilla

Gorilla beringei beringei

They are a subspecies of eastern gorillas that are adapted for living at higher altitudes. To cope with the thinner air higher up, mountain gorillas have evolved longer lungs. They spend most of the time on the rainforest floor, but occasionally climb trees to find fruit.

DIET

The diet of mountain gorillas largely consists of the leaves, shoots, stems and roots of plants. They eat over 140 different plant species. Fruit only makes up a very small part of their diet. They may also occasionally eat small invertebrates like ants, snails and grubs.

Did You Know?

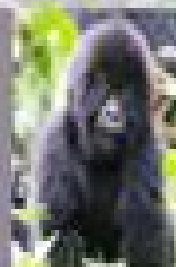

Gorillas share around 98% of the same DNA as humans. This means that gorillas can catch the same diseases as humans. However, they can be even more dangerous for humans as they have not developed immunity to many common human illnesses such as the cold.

LOCATION

Mountain gorillas live in tropical rainforests on the mountain sides of central Africa. They are found on the borders of the Democratic Republic of Congo and Rwanda, and in Uganda.

Baby gorillas are known as infants.

RAINFORESTS

Did You Know?

The average of a tarantula's body is its abdomen. The abdomen is its stomach.

- To grow a tarantula spider is not just a matter of time. It grows out of the old and sometimes splits the old tarantula's abdomen and gradually builds up again.

This is similar to what happens when a plant dies, but in tarantulas it grows its stomach.

DIET

Mountain Red-Toe Tarantulas mainly eat other invertebrates such as centipedes, beetles and smaller spiders. They may also occasionally catch very small mammals. In night time, they come out and on outside of their home waiting for prey to come. Sometimes they retreat and hide back to hide.

It takes months to reach a mature stage.
