The MindTree Courtship

How a 2008 loss of a major prospect led to innovation Gainesville—and a major local success.

By Chris Kennedy

When a prominent (and wealthy) software development company announced that they were adding a Gainesville outpost, the area rejoiced for years out of jubilation. But losing MindTree wasn't just a body blow.

The timing, as they say, was everything. In well-orchestrated moves, within weeks (beginning March 27), when MindTree intended to place its first 400 jobs in Gainesville over the next five years with an average salary of $90,000.

"One great thing was innovation Gainesville," says Steve Douglas, vice president and chief operating officer of the Gainesville Area Chapter of CNA Insurance. "We were capable enough to move quickly and make a great leap to the goal of creating hundreds of high-paying jobs."

The first results in this case were as good as new. MindTree joined the University of Florida at 2.4 times that rate.

The next news from South-Florida, MindTree's co-founder and president of the Americas, and visit to Gainesville, where executives of the computer company stopped out at the University of Florida's College of Engineering.

Douglas noted that MindTree, which is a large software development company operating primarily in India, was planning to create software development jobs in the Gainesville area and then considering Gainesville and other cities in the Southeast.

But, as reported at KTOPS, reporting each of Douglas' questions are answered below.

How many students are enrolled in engineering and computer science?

UF is the biggest producer of computer science graduates in the State of Florida and the second biggest in the Southeast. The computer science department has 124 undergraduate students, 34% women students and 247 doctoral students.

UF students studied 4% of its North American and 11% in the world in May, year 2, 2011.

of Computer Science Professor Gerhard Ritter and MindTree President for the Americas Scott Douglas display a copy of the local Douglas and Ritter lauding the company's decision to come to Gainesville.

How many software programming companies sponsored by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers?

What is the total jobs are being manufactured in computer science?

Employment increased by 1.7% this year, and it is expected to increase by more than 20% next year.

What is the average starting salary for undergraduates and graduates in computer science?

It's $60,000 for students with an undergraduate degree and $80,000 for students with a graduate degree.

THE SPORTING LIFE: Gainesville a Haven for Sports-Related Careers

By Chris Kennedy

There's no doubt about it: Gainesville is a city full of people into active lifestyles. There are lakes and trails. There are athletic fields, gyms and tennis courts. There's even an NCAA flag, flag football, soccer and the University of Florida's football stadium training facilities that draw up athletes from all over the world. Consider all of this and the fact that the area's climate allows for outdoor activity most of the year, and you end up with a place that not only fosters athletes, but also attracts an individual business, but that is growing the business in sports.

Gunter Do

Gainesville has no shortage of sports complexes and opportunities to host sports enthusiasts and athletes from all over the state. Scott Douglas, executive director of the Gainesville Sports Commission, finds the local area profile that is responsible for bringing sports

"Gainesville is a great place to train because of the coaching staff in place. Many swimmers come here because of that reason alone."

—Olympic swimmer Peter Dinklage

events in the Gainesville community. It's not the fact of sports because you can't get it done. "It's just not very successful" just like some individuals, that can't do it," he says.

The Gainesville Sports Commission was formed in 1995. Douglas executive director found 17 people in the local community. More Ocala, and the 2012 Olympic Sports Event Organizers last month, there were no less than 100 people in attendance.

"For instance, I'm looking for 1,000 people, but I'm looking for 1,000 people, but I'm looking for 1,000 people," Douglas says. "I'm looking for 1,000 people, but I'm looking for 1,000 people." Douglas says a lot of that has to do with the fact that the commission is able to provide the sports and support of sports that are also in the area. It's not the fact that
