Heavyweight Jordana Moore Saggese, 2024-07-05 In Heavyweight Jordana Moore Saggese examines images of Black heavyweight boxers to map the visual terrain of racist ideology in the United States paying particular attention to the intersecting discourses of Blackness masculinity and sport Looking closely at the shadow archive of portrayals across fine art vernacular imagery and public media at the turn of the twentieth century she demonstrates how the images of boxers reveal the racist stereotypes implicit in them many of which continue to structure ideas of Black men today With a focus on both anonymous fighters and notorious champions including Jack Johnson Saggese contends that popular images of these men provided white spectators a way to render themselves experts on Blackness and Black masculinity These images became the blueprint for white conceptions of the Black male body existing between fear and fantasy simultaneously an object of desire and an instrument of violence Reframing boxing as yet another way whiteness establishes the violent mythology of its supremacy Saggese highlights the role of imagery in normalizing a culture of anti Blackness
