Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during submaximal exercise at the beginning and end of the training period. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during submaximal exercise compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light at night. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
- Artificial lights that emit red light with a wavelength of 620 nm or longer are recommended, as the length of the spectrum may be reduced by filtering out the blue light spectrum.
- The use of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm. The presence of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm.
- Natural light is not recommended for the use of artificial light.

- When a producer's price for a product is set at a level that is below short-run marginal cost, the producer's short-run marginal cost is greater than the price received by the producer. This results in a loss for the producer. The loss is the difference between the price received by the producer and the short-run marginal cost of the product. The loss is the difference between the price received by the producer and the short-run marginal cost of the product.
