- Q What can a Network Performance Analyzer do that cannot be accomplished by a standard protocol analyzer or a network sniffer?
- A A Network Performance Analyzer can do everything a protocol analyzer or network sniffer can do, and more. It can analyze network traffic to determine the cause of network problems, such as congestion, packet loss, and latency. It can also monitor network performance over time, and generate reports on network usage and performance. This information can be used to optimize network performance and prevent future problems.
