During childhood, girls are at higher risk for eating disorders than boys, and a large majority of females (about 80%) with bulimic disorders have been female. The prevalence of bulimic disorders among women of different weights in 1990s Dutch designs was the gold standard established after the National Institute of Mental Health Nurses (NIMH) study (Birnbaum et al., 1990). Studies that studied a specific, but not a general, eating disorder (e.g., bulimic disorders) are probably not generalizing well to the general population. The most important findings were consistent: that the 1000-hour rule is followed following licensure in the United States and that there is a positive relationship between the number of hours and the number of years of experience. While the 1000-hour rule is not strictly followed in other countries, the relationship between hours
