Reading Comprehension

Parts of a flower

A plant is made up of different parts, with some parts having a specific purpose. At the top of the plant, flowers are made up of different parts with some male and female roles in supporting reproduction.

Petal

Petals play an important role in attracting insects to the flower. They are brightly coloured to attract bees and insects to the flower. The petals are also responsible for the colour of the flower. Without petals, new flowers couldn't be made.

Seed

Seeds are the most important part of the flower. They are the part of the flower that will grow into a new plant. They are also the part of the flower that will be eaten by animals.

Stamen

The stamen is the male part of the flower. It is made up of two parts:

- The anther
- The filament

The anther is at the top of the filament which helps to attract insects. The stamen is important as it produces the pollen, which is contained in the anther. Pollen then goes on to fertilise the ovule.

Style

The style is part of the female part of the flower. It is the sticky part of the flower that will catch the pollen.
