Indigenous Women's Theatre in Canada Sarah MacKenzie, 2020-11-15T00:00:00Z Despite a recent increase in the productivity and popularity of Indigenous playwrights in Canada most critical and academic attention has been devoted to the work of male dramatists leaving female writers on the margins In Indigenous Women's Theatre in Canada Sarah MacKenzie addresses this critical gap by focusing on plays by Indigenous women written and produced in the socio cultural milieu of twentieth and twenty first century Canada Closely analyzing dramatic texts by Monique Mojica Marie Clements and Yvette Nolan MacKenzie explores representations of gendered colonialist violence in order to determine the varying ways in which these representations are employed subversively and informatively by Indigenous women These plays provide an avenue for individual and potential cultural healing by deconstructing some of the harmful ideological work performed by colonial misrepresentations of Indigeneity and demonstrate the strength and persistence of Indigenous women offering a space in which decolonial futurisms can be envisioned In this unique work MacKenzie suggests that colonialist misrepresentations of Indigenous women have served to perpetuate demeaning stereotypes justifying devaluation of and violence against Indigenous women Most significantly however she argues that resistant representations in Indigenous women's dramatic writing and production work in direct opposition to such representational and manifest violence attention and commentary well beyond the precincts of Shakespeare studies W B Worthen Columbia University Shakespeare's plays continue to be circulated on a massive scale in a variety of guises as editions performances and adaptations and it is by means of such mediation that we come to know his drama Shakespeare and the Problem of Adaptation addresses fundamental questions about this process of mediation making use of the fraught category of adaptation to explore how we currently understand the Shakespearean work To adapt implies there exists something to alter but what constitutes the category of the play and how does it relate to adaptation How do play and adaptation relate to drama's twin media text and performance What impact might answers to these questions have on current editorial performance and adaptation studies Margaret Jane Kidnie argues that play and adaptation are provisional categories mutually dependent processes that evolve over time in accordance with the needs of users This theoretical argument about the identity of works and the nature of text and performance is pursued in relation to diverse examples including theatrical productions by the Royal Shakespeare Company the BBC's ShakespeaRe Told the Reduced Shakespeare Company and recent print editions of the complete works These new readings build up a persuasive picture of the cultural and intellectual processes that determine how the authentically Shakespearean is distinguished from the fraudulent and adaptive Adaptation thus emerges as the conceptually necessary but culturally problematic category that results from partial or occasional failures to recognize a shifting work in its textual theatrical instance
