- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light-emitting devices. To reduce the risk of the problem, the patient should be kept in the dark at night.
- Increased nocturnal urination will commonly occur with the use of short-acting hypnotics, the length of the dosage may have to be determined by the patient's urinary elimination.
- The sedative effect of hypnotics may be very strong, so the patient should be cautioned that prolonged use of hypnotics may cause tolerance and dependence. These symptoms of tolerance and dependence usually occur with the use of hypnotics for more than 2 weeks.
