illustrative statistics allow experts to get a quick sense of the central inclination and degree of diffusion of values in a dataset with a single glance. They are useful in gaining an understanding of data distribution as well as in comparing different data distributions. It is frequently necessary for human geographers to take into consideration the locational citations of the data they are working with. Using spatial descriptive statistics, analysts can determine the central propensity and variation of data in a given geographic area or region. The two types of illustrative analysis are mutually supportive of one another. Experts can research the geographic phenomena with which they are involved by combining both statistics and mathematics. Even though descriptive statistics are straightforward concepts in statistical assessment, they are essential and beneficial in today's world of massive amounts of data. The performance and efficacy of descriptive analysis should not be overshadowed in the face of ever-increasing huge quantities of data being generated continuously and distributed via the Internet. Descriptive statistics are characterized by inferential analysis in most cases. When you use descriptive statistics, you are merely explaining what is or what the information reveals about something. When using inferential analysis, you are attempting to draw conclusions that are not based solely on the available data. For example, we use inferential analysis to try to infer what the general public might think based on a sample of data. Alternatively, we use inferential analysis to make decisions about the likelihood that a difference between groups observed in this study is a dependable difference or one that could have occurred by chance. As a result, we use inferential analysis to conclude more general conditions from our data, whereas we use descriptive analysis to simply describe what is happening in our data. Descriptive statistics are used to present quantitative explanations in a manageable format. In a research study, we may have a large number of measures. Alternatively, we can quantify a huge number of participants using any measure.

Optimizing DB2 Queries with IBM DB2 Analytics Accelerator for z/OS Paolo Bruni, Patric Becker, Willie Favero, Ravikumar Kalyanasundaram, Andrew Keenan, Steffen Knoll, Nin Lei, Cristian Molaro, P S Prem, IBM Redbooks, 2012-12-20. The IBM DB2 Analytics Accelerator Version 2.1 for IBM z/OS, also called DB2 Analytics Accelerator or Query Accelerator in this book and in DB2 for z/OS documentation, is a marriage of the IBM System z Quality of Service and Netezza technology to accelerate complex queries in a DB2 for z/OS highly secure and available environment. Superior performance and scalability with rapid appliance deployment provide an ideal solution for complex analysis. This IBM Redbooks publication provides technical decision makers with a broad understanding of the IBM DB2 Analytics Accelerator architecture and its exploitation by documenting the steps for the installation of this solution in an existing DB2 10 for z/OS environment. In this book, we define a business analytics scenario, evaluate the potential benefits of the DB2 Analytics Accelerator appliance, describe the installation and integration steps with the DB2 environment, evaluate performance, and show the advantages to existing business intelligence processes.
