

PHYSICS 2000: LENSES, REFLECTIONS AND REFRACTIONS LABS WITH SIMULATIONS

OBJECTIVE

To study the reflection of light on flat and curved surfaces, and refraction of light through different media, and to find the focal length of a convex lens.

EQUIPMENT

PHET simulated bending light: <https://phet.colorado.edu/en/simulation/bending-light>

PHET simulated Geometric Optics:

<https://phet.colorado.edu/en/simulation/geometric-optics>

Two convex lens of the same focal length are arranged just below. Then, the virtual image. (This is about bending light, and Geometric Optics simulation)

THEORY

Light can be considered as a beam, or ray, that travels in straight lines if the size of wavelength (propagation) is less than the wavelength of light. When a light ray travelling in the medium hits the interface between a different medium, part of it is reflected back into the same medium (according to the law of reflection) and the other part is refracted (part of the light will enter the medium, and the direction will change). This process is called as reflection, and the part of light that enters the second medium.

Law of Reflection: As seen in figure 1, showing that when a light ray strikes a surface, the angle of incidence, θ_i , is equal to the angle of reflection, θ_r . Both angles are measured from the normal, the perpendicular to surface. This is true for flat as well as curved surfaces. Curved surfaces which bulge outward called convex, while those that bulge inward are called concave. If the surface is spherical, or circular, then the reflecting ray may either converge to a point (this is known as converging or diverging effect reflecting surface).

(As in figure, the red line shows light ray, the dashed line shows the normal).
