Molecular and Cellular Aspects of the Drug Addictions Avram Goldstein, 2012-12-06 In 1970 I gave up the chairmanship of the Department of Pharmacology at Stanford University School of Medicine to devote full time to basic and clinical research on problems of drug addiction In 1971 I developed the method of radioligand binding that led to the important characterization of opioid receptors in several laboratories The extraordinary specificity of these receptors for morphine and related opiates suggested the likelihood that there were naturally occurring morphine like molecules in the brain and other tissues The systematic search for these molecules culminated in 1979 in the discovery by my group of the dynorphin peptides one of the three families of opioid peptides the first of which the enkephalin family had been discovered in Aberdeen Scotland in 1975 I also became involved in clinical research on the pharmacologic treatment of heroin addicts for which I established the first large methadone maintenance treatment program in California My basic and clinical research experience convinced me that an institution encompassing laboratory research studies on normal human volunteers and treatment research under a single roof could expedite progress in understanding the drug addictions That concept was transformed into reality by the founding in 1974 of the Addiction Research Foundation of Palo Alto California The funds for construction of a laboratory were provided by a generous grant from the Drug Abuse Council a consortium of several foundations the president of which was Thomas L Bryant CHEMISTRY SILBERBERG, 2003
