

PERSONAL REFLECTIVE ESSAY

The Summit Of All My Fears

According to philosopher, Friedrich Nietzsche, life is a mysterious journey:

On the mountain of truth you can never climb in vain: either you will reach a point higher up today, or you will be training your powers so that you will be able to climb higher tomorrow.

This perspective particularly echoes in the context of my own personal experiences with a series of attempted mountaineering expeditions with my father and other family members. I have long lived with acrophobia (an extreme fear of heights). This affliction seemed to reverberate through the canyons and gutters of my deepest nightmares. Despite attempts made by my father to acclimatize me to an acknowledgement of the irrationality of my fears, I nevertheless continued to lose my ability to focus when approaching the ledge of even a relatively small cliff. While a healthy respect for heights is necessary for one's survival, my own fears began to encroach upon my life in increasingly nebulous ways as do ominous clouds upon the unsuspecting pinnacle of one's mind.

I was enchanted by the serenity of the vistas to be enjoyed atop Ben Lawers: the highest mountain in the southern part of the Scottish Highlands and rising out of the surrounding countryside to almost four thousand feet. Indeed, I became perhaps morbidly fascinated by the prospect of taming the rugged slopes and I felt increasingly inclined to attempt the ascent....

The Ben, which had been wrestled from warring clans during the fourteenth century became, in my mind, the summit of all my fears, and emerged as a laudal promontory, which I knew had to be overcome. Its prehistoric, alpine chalk-based schist rock slopes were home to the ghostly ruins of cottages and glades of trees likely occupied by the minions of Balar - the demonic God of Death in Celtic mythology. The scaly indentations of the schist layers supporting Balar's monastery of monstrosity: the mountain that seemed to call to me in portentous tones: "I am where rocks are created and climbers are made".

I felt I had to prepare for such a battle with support from a climbing instructor. The Glasgow Climbing Centre was a magnificent example of Gothic architecture and housed a variety of climbing and bouldering walls with steeply overhanging precipices and ledges. Impressions of skulls and fingers were embedded into the artificial escarpments nestling in the hallowed natural light filtering through the original stained glass windows.

My instructor's techniques were demonstrated as he clung to the climbing holds with grim tenacity and great precision. At either side of his steady ascent, amateurs were trying to impress girlfriends by racing up the face of the impassive rocks. One by one they were defeated by their own impatience and arrogance. Bodies lay strewn and humiliated on the safety mat and net below. I carefully followed in the imprints of my instructor as his almost lethargic maneuvering was a marvel to behold.

The final hold was in the shape of an eye; the achievement of its pupil my ultimate challenge just as I myself, ever the student, would come to tutor myself in the art of climbing the Ben. I knew that the enemy Balar could kill me simply by staring at me with his evil eye, which he kept closed most of the time, to avoid tripping over dead bodies below. In myth, Balar was once killed by a slingshot by his son Lug in an epic David and Goliath encounter. I therefore, knew that if he could be defeated once he could be defeated again.
