

Essay on bullying: should it be addressed by schools or by parents

by Ms. Jorita F. Nalinga

English 8, M.S.H.E.

"To educate a person in the mind but not in morals is to educate a menace to society."

-Theodore Roosevelt-

Bullying is defined as unwanted, aggressive conduct among school-aged children that involves a real or perceived power imbalance, threat or injury. The behavior is also repeated or has the potential to be repeated over time (Barbati, 2013). Bullying is also defined as aggressive behaviour toward peers (Roland & Galloway, 2002). Children who were victims of bullying often suffer from repeated trauma. They become timid and exhibit an inferiority complex which can aggravate to the extent that it may affect their future, in the academe or in their social circles, or could lead to death by suicide. It is a serious issue in our society that needs to be addressed immediately. But should we solely rely on schools or should parents handle this concern all by themselves?

Schools and parents should work together to tackle the issue. They have to be keen on this issue since they handle the formative development of children. Most cases of bullying starts inside the school and within the campus. There are also incidents of bullying in public places such as parks and recreation centers where children socialize with each other. In this digital age, the topic moves across physical boundaries and even permeates social networking sites thru the internet such as Facebook and Twitter. Parents, school officials, even local authorities and the government should come up with programs to deal with this predicament.

The Department of Education and Early Childhood Development's Building Respectful and Safe Schools identified four types of bullying. These include physical, verbal, covert and cyberbullying. Physical bullying includes hitting, kicking, tripping, pinching and pushing or damaging property. Verbal bullying includes name calling, insults, teasing, intimidation, homophobic or racist remarks, or verbal abuse. Covert bullying is often harder to recognize and can be carried out behind the bullied person's back. It is designed to harm someone's social
