Grindlay, A.G. Davis Philip, 2012-12-06 In the centennial year 1985 86 of Harlow Shapley s birth the study of globular clusters was no less important to the development of astronomy than in 1915 when Shapley first noted their concentration on the sky By 1917 Shapley had used the properties of the system of globular clusters to complete the Copernican revolution and locate the solar system and its Earth bound observers far from the center of the Galaxy and the globular cluster distribution Seven decades later in the year of these proceedings globular cluster research and the study of the system of globular clusters in our own and distant galaxies is undergoing a renaissance of activity The introduction of new observational tools particularly CCD imagers and digital spectrographs as well as powerful theoretical methods have transformed the study of globular clusters into one of the main line areas of modern astrophysics Thus it seemed particularly appropriate to one of us when considering how the Harvard College Observatory might mark the Shapley centennial to propose and plan for an IAU Symposium on Globular Cluster Systems in Galaxies Planning for the Shapley Symposium as it came to be called was even more drawn out than the preparation of this volume The Symposium was originally proposed to the IAU Secretariat in time for it to be held in August 1985 so that it might occur in the centennial calendar year Advances in Small Animal Care, E-Book 2022 Philip H. The Management of Secondary Legislation

Great Britain: Parliament: Merits of Statutory Instruments Committee,2006-03-27 Statutory Instruments SIs often described as secondary legislation are the means by which government departments implement the policy measures laid down by Acts of Parliament primary legislation While the majority of SIs are generally well crafted and fit for purpose the Committee s report highlights areas for improvement including the fact that some are laid before Parliament at less than the required 21 days notice of coming into force or laid in large numbers at peak periods of the year which renders proper scrutiny difficult Other problems include lack of clarity due to opaque drafting or because they rely heavily on cross references to earlier instruments as well as inadequate consultation with those most likely to be affected by their provisions The report sets out 20 recommendations designed to improve the overall quality of SIs produced by government departments by establishing a strategic approach to the process of planning and making SIs based on good practice guidance rather than the current laissez faire approach These include the need for each department to draw up an annual management plan for its projected secondary legislation with the establishment of a centralised co ordinating mechanism to oversee the scheduling and implementation of the whole process across Whitehall
