The Piano Tuner Peter Meinke,2012-03-15

In The Piano Tuner Peter Meinke writes of the foreignness that awaits us when we go abroad and when we answer our own front door to admit a stranger that confronts us in unfamiliar cities and villages and in the equally disquieting surroundings of our memories and regrets. Often in these stories what seems a safe comfortable environment turns suddenly threatening. In the title story a writer's quiet existence amid his antiques and books is dismantled piece by piece by a demonic beer-bellied piano tuner. In The Ponoos a man recalls how as a young boy living in Brooklyn during World War II he became a collaborationist in the brutal pranks of two Irish bullies. In The Twisted River the sedate collegiality of a Polish university is disrupted when an American on a Fulbright grant attempts to blackmail two faculty members. And in The Bracelet a young anthropology student doing field work in Africa finds herself drawn further and further into the role of a priestess of Oshun into a life dictated by the configuration of cowry shells cast upon the floor. Meinke writes of a world where our control over our lives seldom exists across a border and often extends no further than our fingertips. Attempts to bridge two cultures, two lives are sometimes successful as when an actor finds love in the arms of a tough talking barmaid but more usually lead to disillusionment as when a hard drinking salesman's career is shattered after he is drunk under the table one night by a Polish engineer or when an English father struggles to find common ground with his American son. Riveting almost terrifying the stories in The Piano Tuner tell of decent men and women caught in events that they could never have predicted would never have chosen.
