Educating the Scholar Practitioner in Organization Development Deborah A. Colwill, 2012-12-01

Organization Development (OD) is a young social science. Little has been written on the intentional development of OD professionals. As a young field of inquiry, it is important to understand how the future leaders of the field of OD are being developed. The focus of this work explores the education of scholar-practitioners in OD. The research upon which this document is based examined the impact that professional research doctoral programs affiliated with the field of OD had on the learning and professional development of select doctoral graduates. Alumni reported important elements of their educational experience that contributed to their professional and personal growth. The nature of these educational elements suggest processes or methods of teaching that may be transferable to training OD professionals in a broader context outside of higher education. Even more directly, this research provides well-informed feedback to administrators and faculty of professional research doctorate programs from the alumni about their educational experience. This feedback could be used to advance both program and course development in universities that offer these types of degrees. The intended audience of this work includes practitioners of OD, professors of OD and management faculty, and administrators of doctoral education, talent management, and leadership development professionals, and adult educators.

Community Engagement and the COVID-19 Pandemic Tawnya Azar, 2025-06-24

Community engaged CE teaching is not a new concept. However, in the past several years, it has gained increased emphasis, as is evident by the changes to institution mission statements and the allocation of institution resources to support faculty development in CE teaching, as well as to support CE coursework and research. The arrival of the COVID-19 pandemic forced many faculty members to pivot to an all-online instruction model, impacting community engaged teaching and research in both predictable and unexpected ways. Community partners facing similar struggles to serve their communities with restrictions on face-to-face interaction were often too overwhelmed to work with higher education volunteers. Legally, universities could not ask students to risk their health with face-to-face community engagement. In fact, the number of CE courses decreased dramatically in 2020 and 2021 due to the unique challenges posed by the pandemic. At the same time, the pandemic presented some CE faculty with new opportunities for community engagement. Some responded swiftly to the immediate needs of the local, regional, or national community with which they worked, taking advantage of the affordances of digital technology or capitalizing on the issues that the pandemic itself created or exacerbated. This collection captures the incredible work of pivoting and innovating in community engaged teaching With a primary focus on community engaged teaching in higher education this collection explores how faculty students and community partners navigated their work during the COVID 19 pandemic Additionally it raises important questions about how we might stay engaged with community during a crisis
