

aquainted the former, that he would rather sink than comply with the demand, but requested that if the British captain meant to enforce it, he would fire a gun ahead of the frigate.<sup>7</sup>As the Southampton's boat pulled round her stern towards the opposite gangway, the unsuccessful result of the mission was communicated. Off went the bow gun; and, in another instant, (then just half past six,) the second and remaining guns upon the broadside of the Southampton followed in rapid succession. The fire was returned; the action went on; and the Amethyste, aware of what was the chief arm of her strength, made several efforts to board; but the Southampton, by her superiority in manœuvring, frustrated every attempt. It had always been an essential point in sir James Yeo's system of discipline, to practise his men at gunnery; and they now gave unequivocal proof of the proficiency to which they had attained. The main and mizen masts of the Amethyste fell in quick succession, before the cannonade had lasted half an hour; and her hull soon became riddled from stem to stern: still the desperate crew continued a feeble and irregular fire. The Amethyste's two consorts, in the mean time, had made sail, and were running for shelter under the battery of Maraguana. At about three quarters past seven, desirous to put an end to whanow could hardly be called a contest, sir James Yeo hailed to know if the Amethyste (whose colours had been shot away) had surrendered: some one on board replied in the affirmative; and the Southampton ceased her fire. Scarcely had she done so, than the fire-mast and bowsprit of the Amethyste went by the board.<sup>7</sup>A proof of the inexperience of the latter's crew, and the confusion into which they had been thrown by the smart and destructive fire of their antagonist, may be seen in the Southampton's loss; which amounted to only one seaman killed, and a midshipman and nine seamen and marines wounded. On the other hand, the Amethyste, out of her crew of 700men (Frenchmen, Americans, Haytians, a motley group of almost every nation,) had 105 men killed and 120 wounded, including among the latter her captain, M.Gaspard. The whole of the surviving crew, except about 20 men, were landed at Maraguana, Petite-Goave, and Port-au-Prince; and the frigate, under jury masts, fitted while she lay in Port-au-Prince, proceeded, in company with the Southampton, to Port Royal, Jamaica. On a subsequent day, we believe, the Amethyste was restored to Christophe; and the conduct of sir James Yeo, in all he had done, was approved."

The Amethyste was the late french frigate Felcité, captured in June 1809, when armed en flute, by the british frigate Latona. She was deemed unfit for the british navy, and sold to an agent of Christophe's to whose little navy she was afterwards attached. Treachery, or something of the kind, subsequently removed her into the possession of M.Bougellat; who assumed the command of the department of the south in Saint-Doningo, upon the death of the rebelter Rigaud. The frigates name was then changed from Amethyste to Heureuse-Reunion; but, in all the accounts respecting her, she is called Amethyste.
