World War II

Lasting for almost six years, World War Two is considered to be one of the toughest and deadliest international conflicts. It began on the 1st of September 1939 – after Germany's invasion of Poland – and ended on the 2nd September 1945. During this time, it is estimated that between sixty and eighty million people lost their lives. Life for those soldiers fighting on the front line was extremely challenging, but how did it affect the millions of civilians who were living in Britain at the time?

The Blitz

Britain was a target for enemy fire, especially its larger cities. From September 1940, the Luftwaffe – the German Air Force – began their aerial war on the country's major cities, starting with London, in a period of time referred to as the Blitz. The term 'Blitz' is a shortened form of the word 'Blitzkrieg' – a German word meaning lightning war. During their first assault, over 350 bombers dropped 300 tonnes of bombs on the East End of London which caused devastation to the streets and docks in that area and resulted in nearly 2,500 people being wounded or killed. For almost a year, the Luftwaffe continued to frequently attack cities, ports and industrial areas across the country, generally at night. In order to alert citizens to the threat of attack, air raid sirens were sounded to instruct people to take cover; individuals would take refuge in shelters in their homes – either Anderson or Morrison shelters – or even in their local community. This included London Underground stations and tunnels. In addition, residents were asked to cover their windows and doors and turn off any lights because this made it more difficult for enemy planes to identify the bombing locations.

Evacuation

Evacuation – defined as the action of leaving a place – was the term used to describe the movement of children away from the major towns and cities, which were most heavily bombed during the war.
