The Determinants of Satisfaction with Family Life Hyder Lakhani,1988      Energy Trends and Their Implications for U.S. Army Installations Eileen T. Westervelt,2005 The primary issues affecting energy options are those of availability affordability sustainability and security Since energy resources are unevenly distributed around the world and the impacts of energy consumption have global reach in both environmental and political terms any meaningful review of energy related issues must take a global perspective This work synthesizes world and national energy issues including energy source options resource stocks and future prognosis in the context of how Army installations need to respond to changing trends This report presents implications of actions that may be taken in response to the national and world energy situation to help the Army to make informed choices on energy utilization that will contribute to sustaining the Army's mission

Donnelly,J. Michael Cutbirth,Ernest O. Rogers,Sturat D. Jessup,Joel T. Park,2006 An extensive experimental effort was undertaken to document the performance of a low aspect ratio hydrofoil with trailing edge blowing across a Coanda surface in a large water tunnel facility This facility was the William B Morgan Large Cavitation Channel in Memphis TN The hydrofoil model with a taper ratio of 0.76 was mounted through a load balance A reflection plane provided for an effective aspect ratio of 2 The dual slot configuration allowed for an investigation of thrust vectoring and also presented an unexpected opportunity to offset the negative impact of excessive turning of the wall jet onto the underside of the foil This report serves to document the experimental details of that effort for future experiments and document the types of data collected for validation of computational fluid dynamics CFD codes The performance of the selected hydrofoil section shape is documented with six component load measurements and detailed laser Doppler velocimetry measurements LDV taken in the wake of the foil

Reanalysis of Beach Erosion Board Technical Memorandum No. 94 Ernest C. McNair,1987      A Prototype Windflow Modeling System for Tactical Weather Support Operations John M. Lanicci,1987 This report documents the culmination of a three year development and testing effort on a two dimensional x y plane surface layer windflow model for complex terrain The model was acquired from the U S Army Atmospheric Sciences Laboratory ASL at White Sands New Mexico in 1984 The version of the model described in this report has been adapted to run using real time data on both the Zenith 100 and IBM compatible Zenith 248 computers The model accepts input of a single surface observation or forecast of wind temperature and cloud cover and uses this information along with terrain information and the date time to diagnose the surface layer stability The model then performs a variational analysis of the windfield adjusting the winds through a relaxation technique until the windfield conforms to effects of topography stability ambient flow conditions and mass continuity The model is designed to produce high resolution wind analyses typically running on domains on the order of 10 X 10 km with horizontal grid spacing of 100 to 200 m We present an overview of potential military and nonmilitary uses for the model and describe the relevant physics and computer architecture of the model and its two utility plotting routines A user s guide included here as Section 4 is primarily aimed at providing operational users such as forecasters some guidelines for using the model and interpreting the output Finally we present the results of an operational test of the model in support of Army Special Forces operations at Ft Devens Massachusetts The test results illustrate the model s potential as a tactical weather support tool for low level aviation and paratroop activities

Numerical Simulation of Low-Density Shock-Wave Interactions Christopher E. Glass, 1999 CFD numerical simulations of low density shock wave interactions for an incident shock impinging on a cylinder have been performed Flow field density gradient and surface pressure and heating define the type of interference pattern and corresponding perturbations The maximum pressure and heat transfer level and location of various interaction types are presented A time accurate solution of the Type IV interference is employed to demonstrate the establishment and the steadiness of the low density flow interaction
