Report On Human Exposure:

Second National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals United States. Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (U.S.), 2003 National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals, 2005

Fourth National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals, 2009 Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2014-04-24

The Fourth National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals 2009 the Report provides an ongoing assessment of the exposure of the U S population to environmental chemicals by the use of biomonitoring The Report is cumulative containing all the results from previous Reports and provides new data for years 2003 2004 Data for 75 new environmental chemicals are included for the survey period 2003 2004 In each survey period most chemicals or their metabolites were measured in blood serum and urine samples from random subsamples of about 2500 participants from the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey NHANES conducted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention s CDC s National Center for Health Statistics NHANES is a series of surveys designed to collect data related to the health and nutritional status of the U S population The blood serum and urine exposure measurements presented in the Report were made by CDC s Environmental Health Laboratory Division of Laboratory Sciences National Center for Environmental Health using mass spectrometry methods The term environmental chemical refers to a chemical compound or chemical element present in air water food soil dust or other environmental media e g consumer products Biomonitoring is the assessment of human exposure to chemicals by measuring the chemicals or their metabolites in such human specimens as blood or urine A metabolite is a chemical alteration of the original compound produced by body tissues Blood serum and urine levels reflect the amount of a chemical that actually gets into the body by all routes of exposure including ingestion inhalation and dermal absorption The measurement of an environmental chemical in a person s blood or urine is an indication of exposure it does not by itself mean that the chemical causes disease or an adverse effect Research studies separate from these data are required to determine which blood or urine levels are safe and which are associated with disease or an adverse effect For blood serum and urine levels the Report provides geometric means and percentiles of environmental chemicals by age group gender and race ethnicity More in depth statistical analysis including multivariate analysis incorporating health endpoints and other predictive variables is beyond the scope of this document The overall purpose of the Report is to provide unique exposure information to scientists physicians and health officials to help prevent exposure to some environmental chemicals Specific public health uses of the exposure information in the Report are To determine which chemicals get into Americans and at what concentrations For chemicals with a known toxicity level to determine the prevalence of people with levels above those toxicity levels To establish reference values that can be used by physicians and scientists to determine whether a person or group has an unusually high exposure This information is especially helpful to identify population groups that merit

further assessment of exposure sources or health effects To assess the effectiveness of public health efforts to reduce exposure of Americans to specific chemicals To determine whether exposure levels are higher among such potentially vulnerable groups as minorities and children To track over time trends in levels of exposure of the population To set priorities for research on human health effects National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals ,2001

Fourth National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals Centers for Disease Control and Prevention,2014-05-15 The Fourth Report uses a new procedure to estimate percentiles when the percentile estimate falls on a value that is repeated multiple times e g five results that all have the value 90 1 Percentiles for all three NHANES survey periods 1999 2000 2001 2002 2003 2004 have been re computed by use of this improved procedure Only slight differences should be noted when one compares the re computations to previous releases of the Report Details of this procedure are provided in Appendix A Second National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals National Center for Environmental Health,2003 National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals National Center for Environmental Health (U.S.),2001 Fourth National Report on Human Exposure to Environmental Chemicals, Updated Tables, September 2013 U.s.
