as a Tool for Sustainable Rural Community Development and Natural Resources Management in the Tonle Sap Biosphere Reserve Neth Baromey,2008 Qualitative Research and Theory Development Mats Alvesson,Dan Karreman,2011-05-12 Empirical data is one of the cornerstones of knowledge in the social sciences and yet the researcher often takes it for granted reserving his or her imaginative faculties for finding a theory that fits the data This revealing account of the theory data relationship calls this faith in data into question and establishes a reflexive framework and vocabulary to explore the creative political and philosophical elements of data production Rather than thinking about the theory data fit Alvesson and Karreman will encourage you to consider the research process as one of theory data interplay asking if creative empirical material can challenge established theory and inspire new lines of development and if

breakdowns and mysteries encountered in research can be a constructive rather than destructive process They will encourage you to think critically about empirical data in terms of construction rather than verification and most importantly they will encourage you to develop theory that is interesting and novel rather than naive or irrelevant making this title essential reading for those who often find the traditional vocabulary and frameworks of social science research obvious or simplistic

Schindler,2021-12-09 Participation has become an orthodoxy in the field of development an essential element of projects and programmes This book analyses participation in development interventions as an institutionalised expectation a rationalized myth and examines how organisations on different levels of government process it At least two different objectives of participation are appropriate and legitimate for international organisations in the field the empowerment of local beneficiaries and the achievement of programme goals Both integrate participatory forums into the organisational logic of development interventions Local administrations react to the institutionalised expectation with means ends decoupling where participatory forums are implemented superficially but de facto remain marginalised in local administrative processes and activities The book furthermore provides a thick description of the organisationality of participation in development interventions Participatory forums are shown to be a form of partial organisation They establish an order in the relationship between administrations and citizens through the introduction of rules and the creation of a defined membership At the same time this order is found to be fragile and subject to criticism and negotiation Research as Development Salla Sariola,Robert Simpson,2019-03-15 In Research as Development Salla Sariola and Bob Simpson show how international collaboration operates in a setting that is typically portrayed as resource poor and scientifically lagging Based on their long term fieldwork in Sri Lanka Sariola and Simpson bring into clear ethnographic focus the ways international scientific collaborations feature prominently in the pursuit of global health in which research operates as development and not merely for it The authors follow the design inception and practice of two clinical trials one a global health charity funded trial and the other a pharmaceutical industry sponsored trial Research as Development situates these two trials within their historical political and cultural contexts and thus counters the idea that local actors are merely passive recipients of new technical and scientific rationalities While social studies of clinical trials are beginning to be an established niche in academic writing Research as Development helps fill important gaps in the literature through its examination of clinical research situated in cultures in low income settings Research as Development is noteworthy for the way it highlights the critical and creative role that local researchers play in establishing international collaborations and making them work into locally viable forms The volume shows how these clinical and research interactions bring about changes in culture technologies and expertise in Sri Lanka contexts that have not previously been written about in any detail
