Abstract

Constructivism has been a very powerful model for explaining how knowledge is produced in the world as well as how students learn. Moreover, constructivist teaching practices are becoming more prevalent in teacher education programs, while demonstrating significant success in promoting student learning. In this paper, the author takes a serious look at constructivist teaching practices highlighting both the promises and potential problems of these practices. The author argues that constructivist teaching has often been misinterpreted and misused, resulting in learning practices that neither challenge students nor address their needs. He outlines some of the ways in which constructivism has been misconstrued and analyzes several ways in which constructivist teaching has been misused. The author also presents two examples that illustrate the effective use of constructivist teaching and explains what makes them successful.

Keywords: constructivism, teaching, learning, misuse, effective use.

An individual's own learning experience shapes his unique perspective about process of education which in turn influences his/her decisions as an administrator, a manager or a police maker. For instance, teachers often treat their students in the same manner as they had been treated their teachers and others in their childhood. Meaning thereby that a person's approach towards education determine his/her performance and practice inside or outside the classroom. Conversely, it is also possible to help the teachers and other interested persons to look into perspective of other's if they are enable to understand the background of psychological and pedagogical thought in which the new ideas emerge. This is particularly important for facilitating desirable changes in teaching process.

The purpose of the paper is to present a comparative description of traditional and constructivist approaches to education.

Vignette-1

Four years old Nish came weeping- "Mom I don't want to go to school"

Mother: "My child but why?"

(The mother got worried. Because she had thought that her child will adjust nicely in that well established school, leaving behind the confines of their flat on the third floor. She had seen, Nisha running to the swing at the far end of the field and even talking to some of the children there, on the very first day she was admitted to the school).

The mother decided to meet the principles.

Mother: Today my daughter refused to come to school.

Principal: And you come to make a complaint with me?

Mother: No principalbut

Principal: Please listen to me. Your daughter is very naughty. I always find her moving in the classroom. She cannot repeat ABCD with the whole class. She cannot learn numbers and does not like to write.
