

An aerial photograph of a mountainous landscape featuring extensive terraced rice fields. The terraces are carved into the slopes of the hills, creating a series of concentric, wavy lines. The fields are filled with green rice plants. A winding road or path cuts through the terraces, and a small cluster of buildings is visible in the lower center. The background shows more distant, hazy mountains under a clear sky.

book presents research on how geography as a science, as a university degree and as a school subject can get ready for the future. Today's world is in a state of permanent and radical change which is affecting society, science and the economy in equal measure. The concurrent processes of globalisation, digitisation and integration shape and constantly modify the development factors and generate multidirectional social changes. Growing global issues related to climate change, food security, depletion of conventional energy sources, conflicts and wars, refugee crisis and pandemic open up new issues for geographic investigations as well as reinforce the need to examine old research topics covering a variety of subdisciplines. That is why the term future ready is being more frequently used in discourses on geographic research. In particular
