✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

Introduction

Infertility is a serious health problem affecting millions of individuals of reproductive age. According to the 2021 World Health Organization Report on Fertility, approximately 180 million individuals and 48 million couples suffer from infertility worldwide (Carson & Kallen, 2021). W.H.O. defines infertility as a condition in which a female or a male reproductive system fails to achieve pregnancy after a series of unprotected sex (WHO, 2020). Infertility has severe social and health impacts on infertile individuals, particularly women. Infertile women often experience depression, low self-esteem, emotional stress, violence, social stigma, violence, divorce, and emotional stress that adversely affect their well-being. There is a need to improve the standard of care to help people living with infertility become fertile. The increasing number of individuals and couples with infertility calls for evidence-based care to implement an effective intervention plan to prevent and treat infertility.

Pathophysiology

Various factors can lead to infertility. The causes can be categorized into environmental or personal factors. The common known risk factors for infertility in all genders include age (40 for men and 35 for women), health conditions (diabetes, bulimia, anorexia disorder, stress, S.T.D.s, and obesity), exposure to toxins like pesticides and lead, smoking and substance abuse (Rooney & Domar, 2018). Moreover, there are risk factors that are common among females. These include damaged fallopian tubes, abnormal menstruation, kidney disease, celiac disease, pelvic inflammatory disease, sickle cell anemia, thyroid disease, and pituitary gland disorder. When it comes to males, the main risk factors include varicocele, cystic fibrosis, exposing testicles to high heat, injury to the testicles or scrotum, hypogonadism, misuse of steroids, and premature ejaculation.
