Rogue River Journal John Daniel,2005-04-14 In November of 2000 after the presidential election but before the final results had been handed down by the Supreme Court John Daniel climbed into his pickup drove to a remote location in Oregon's Rogue River Canyon and quit civilization The strictures were severe with no two way human communication not even with his wife and no radio no music not even his cat He would isolate himself in a cabin sure to be snowed in soon after his arrival intent on hearing no human voice but his own until spring thawed the road This experiment in solitude was an attempt to clarify his identity while pursuing daily life without the distractions of the world at large Daniel had spent a week or two alone before but this would be an entirely new challenge and as he drove off into the mountains he felt a fear tinged freedom Rogue River Journal chronicles his journey in solitude a season of memory and his search for a coherent place to stand on the earth

Evidence-Based Cybersecurity Pierre-Luc Pomerleau, David Maimon, 2022-06-23 The prevalence of cyber dependent crimes and illegal activities that can only be performed using a computer computer networks or other forms of information communication technology has significantly increased during the last two decades in the USA and worldwide As a result cybersecurity scholars and practitioners have developed various tools and policies to reduce individuals and organizations risk of experiencing cyber dependent crimes However although cybersecurity research and tools production efforts have increased substantially very little attention has been devoted to identifying potential comprehensive interventions that consider both human and technical aspects of the local ecology within which these crimes emerge and persist. Moreover, it appears that rigorous scientific assessments of these technologies and policies in the wild have been dismissed in the process of encouraging innovation and marketing. Consequently, governmental organizations, public and private companies, allocate a considerable portion of their operations budgets to protecting their computer and internet infrastructures without understanding the effectiveness of various tools and policies in reducing the myriad of risks they face. Unfortunately, this practice may complicate organizational workflows and increase costs for government entities, businesses, and consumers. The success of the evidence-based approach in improving performance in a wide range of professions, for example, medicine, policing, and education, leads us to believe that an evidence-based cybersecurity approach is critical for improving cybersecurity efforts. This book seeks to explain the foundation of the evidence-based cybersecurity approach, review its relevance in the context of existing security tools and policies, and provide concrete examples of how adopting this approach could improve cybersecurity operations and guide policymakers' decision-making process. The evidence-based cybersecurity approach explained aims to support security professionals, policymakers, and individual computer users' decision-making regarding the deployment of security policies and tools by calling for rigorous scientific investigations of the effectiveness of these policies and mechanisms in achieving their goals to protect critical assets. This book illustrates how this approach provides an ideal framework for conceptualizing an interdisciplinary problem like cybersecurity because it stresses moving beyond decision makers' political, financial, social, and personal experience backgrounds when adopting cybersecurity tools and policies. This approach is also a model in which policy decisions are made based on scientific research findings.

Guide to Wireless Network Security John R. Vacca, 2006-10-16 1

INTRODUCTION With the increasing deployment of wireless networks, 802.11 architecture in enterprise environments, IT enterprises are working to implement security mechanisms that are equivalent to those existing today for wire-based networks. An important aspect of this is the need to provide secure access to the network for valid users. Existing wired network jacks are located inside buildings, already secured from unauthorized access through the use of keys, badge access, and so forth. A user must gain physical access to the building in order to plug a client computer into a network jack. In contrast, a wireless access point (AP) may be accessed from off the premises if the signal is detectable, for instance, from a parking lot adjacent to the building. Thus, wireless networks require secure access to the AP and the ability to isolate the AP from the internal private network prior to user authentication into the network domain. Furthermore, as enterprises strive to provide better availability of mission-critical wireless data, they also face the challenge of maintaining that data's security and integrity. While each connection with a client, a supplier, or an enterprise partner can improve responsiveness and efficiency, it also increases the vulnerability of enterprise wireless data to attack. In such an environment, wireless network security is becoming more important every day. Also, with the growing reliance on e-commerce, wireless network-based services, and the

The Future of the Internet Jonathan Zittrain, 2009-05-28 In The Future of the Internet And How to Stop It Jonathan Zittrain explores the dangers the internet faces if it fails to balance ever more tightly controlled technologies with the flow of innovation that has generated so much progress in the field of technology Zittrain argues that today s technological market is dominated by two contrasting business models the generative and the non generative The generative models the PCs Windows and Macs of this world allow third parties to build upon and share through them The non generative model is more restricted appliances such as the xbox iPod and tomtom might work well but the only entity that can change the way they operate is the vendor If we want the internet to survive we need to change People must wake up to the risk or we could lose everything
