The Securitization of Climate Change: Australian and United States' Military Responses (2003 - 2013) Michael Durant Thomas, 2017-07-25 This book examines how the armed forces of the United States and Australia have responded to the threat posed by climate change to national security Drawing on established securitisation frameworks Copenhagen and Paris Schools the author uses a combination of quantitative and qualitative techniques to systematically examine more than 3 500 speeches policies and doctrinal articles since 2003 Importantly the author undertakes an examination of the intersection between the political and the military spheres probing the question of how ideology has influenced the military's uptake on the issue. In this context the author identifies the difficulty of an ostensibly apolitical institution responding to what has become both a hyper-political issue and an unprecedented security threat. A close examination of the key political actors, their intent, outlook and political mandate for broader climate action is therefore crucial to understanding the policy freedom and constraints within which military leaders operate. The book consists of eight chapters divided into four parts focusing on perspectives and methodological insights, empirical case studies, case study comparison and concluding observations. Offers a rare and systematic examination of military climate policy by a military officer from Australia. Identifies a divergence of Australian military climate policy from that of the US military during the Obama Administration. Develops a unique method that quantifies climate security enabling a graphical representation for quick and ready reference ideally suited to policy makers.

Chemical news and Journal of physical science, 1870      Developing Property Sustainably Sara J. Wilkinson, Sarah L. Sayce, Pernille H. Christensen, 2015-06-05. Developing Property Sustainably introduces readers to the key issues surrounding sustainable property development in the global marketplace. Pulling together received wisdom and original research, the authors provide a clear and practical overview of the sustainable property development process as well as a critical appraisal of the problems faced by global built environment stakeholders. Throughout, the authors demonstrate how the property development industry could and should respond better to debate on sustainable practices in the built environment by adopting more rigorous measurement techniques and sustainable approaches. Starting by exploring key definitions and stakeholders, the book goes on to explore finance, planning, construction, procurement, occupation, retrofit and lifecycle sustainability in order to provide the reader with a detailed understanding of all the issues involved in the delivery of sustainable property development from inception to occupation and beyond. Throughout the book, international case studies are used to demonstrate how sustainable property development is applied in practice around the world. With a logical chapter structure and accessible writing style, Developing Property Sustainably would be perfect for use on undergraduate and postgraduate modules and courses in real estate development, property and urban development and other built environment programmes.

Science Teaching in Schools Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Science and Technology Committee, 2006-11-05. The Committee's report examines science and mathematics teaching in secondary schools in England, focusing on the following issues: the take-up of science and mathematics at GCSE and A level; the provision of careers advice to students; problems in the recruitment and retention of teachers; the quality of teaching methods; and the role of continuing professional development. The Committee finds that effective science teaching in schools is essential both in order to ensure a satisfactory general level of scientific literacy in society and to enable the next generation of scientists and engineers to progress into higher education and beyond. It argues that the current examination system forces students to study an excessively narrow range of subjects at too early an age and it recommends that the Government should reconsider the Tomlinson proposals for a broader diploma based system for 14 19 year old students based on the International Baccalaureate This would ensure that students receive a more rounded education and are not made to over specialise before they are able to see the merits of studying science and mathematics Concerns are also raised about the shortage of science teachers particularly specialist physics and chemistry teachers the quality of careers advice in schools and the importance of practical science in schools
