

PSYCH chap 11: Personality

General overview of personality

Personality: refers to an individual's characteristic pattern of thinking, acting, feeling, and behaving. There are two key elements to personality:

1. Uniqueness: how we differ from others
2. Persistence: how specific aspects of our personality endure over time

Personality trait: a durable disposition to behave in a particular way in a variety of situations.

Goals for understanding personality:

- Description of individual characteristics
- Prediction of how people will act under varying circumstances
- Explanation of how psychological disorders evolve so that effective treatments can be developed

Major theories of personality-

Includes all of the diverse theories descend from the work of Sigmund Freud, which focus on unconscious mental forces.

Sigmund Freud: psychoanalysis

Carl Jung: the collective unconscious

Alfred Adler: striving for superiority

Sigmund Freud (1856-1939)-

Psychoanalytic theory (Freud): proposes that childhood sexuality and unconscious motivations influence personality.

- Personality is a derivative of conflicts.

Note: these are NOT physical entities but rather abstract psychological concepts

Id: Constantly strives to satisfy basic biological drives. Operates on the pleasure principle.

- Pleasure principle: if no constraint exists, it seeks immediate gratification.
- Largely unconscious

Ego: contains our partly conscious perceptions, thoughts, and actions

- Interacts with ID and superego
- Operates by the reality principle- seeks to ratify id's impulses in a realistic manner that will bring long term pleasure
- In an interphase with some unconscious, preconscious and conscious

Super-ego: voice of morals and values. Forces the ego to consider the real and the ideal. Develops over time.
