Many people think that videogames are harmful, thus, should be banned immediately. The most popular argument is that modern computer entertainment promotes violence contributing to affected moral values of youth. To my mind, computer games are in fact useful since there is no evidence that these products build violent behavior model, while the positive effects include learning along with relaxing potential.

I strongly believe that exposure to realistic depiction of violence in games has no effect on human personality. Even children differentiate fictional environment from real-world and realize where specific behavior models can be applied. Dr. Zendle from the University of York conducted scientific experiments in 2018 but did not detect aggression increase in participants who played in realistic cruel combat games. Moreover, as for me, the possibility to adopt violent way of behavior completely diminishes the necessity to demonstrate cruelty in real life.

I consider such games possessing as much violence like many other objects of art in the modern world: films, books, pictures, etc. All the mentioned objects are treated as art that possesses deeper meaning and value. At the same time, many modern video products such as Witcher series demonstrate developed plot, aesthetic value, and strong moral component. I think that such activities may be compared to books and films in terms of their entertaining and learning capabilities.

In conclusion, it is clear that such entertainment demonstrates a rather high level of violence due to increased realism and improved graphics. However, it does not mean that they should be banned since all other art pieces, such as films and books, sometimes demonstrate even higher violence level. Positive characteristics of electronic games such as relaxation and entertainment need to be studied instead. However, the appropriate gaming time should be considered since uncontrolled exposure to computer monitor may indeed be harmful.

Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review

Nikolaus Kriegeskorte,Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2 4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper s quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system abound these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e g should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e g peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e g weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point
